

Basic Law education

THE Basic Law will be taught in secondary schools from September to promote awareness among students of the territory's post-1997 constitution, according to the Secretary for Constitutional Affairs, Mr Michael Sze Cho-cheung.

In reply to a question from Mr Philip Wong Yuhong, Mr Sze said the Basic Law would become part of the social studies subject for secondary one to three pupils and part of liberal studies for secondary six to seven pupils.

Mr Sze added that the Education Department was in the process of producing a teaching kit on the Joint Declaration and the Basic Law to be introduced in the new school year.
